As user of the computer software Decotrainer I accept:

(1) Decotrainer is a computer program for visualizing of gas saturations during diving. It is a tool for teaching. The program is not intended for using for real dives. If I use the data, which Decotrainer calculates, for real dives, I have to take care:

(2) I have to check the results for validity and conclusiveness. This can be done by checking with another independent computer program.

(3) I have to use a suitable diving computer during my dive for permanent checking.

(4) Dives, especially dives into great depths and/or dives using multiple gas mixes, are potentially very dangerous. Technical diving requires profound knowledge and practical experiences and therefore a good training. Wrong planning of the dive may cost your life. This program cannot substitute your own knowledge and experience. The program requires your own knowledge and experience. Your life depends on the correct decompression plan.
